Map: Poems After William Smith's Geological Map of 1815

By Stephen Boyce, Alison Brackenbury, James Brookes

Worple Press, United Kingdom, 2015. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 210 x 140 mm. Language: N/A. Brand New Book. The poems in this anthology celebrate a map, a man, and a science. The science is geology. The man is William Smith (1769 - 1839), civil engineer and geologist. The map is Smith's masterpiece: A Delineation of the Strata of England and Wales, with part of Scotland, the first geological map of an entire country, published in 1815. As a working engineer, not a gentleman, Smith was unable to become a member of the newly formed Geological Society. His contribution to the new science of geology was initially dismissed by the Society, which set out to produce its own rival map. Coupled with some imprudent investments, Smith's venture culminated in a stretch in debtor's prison. By the time of his death in 1839, however, Smith's achievements had been recognised; in 1831 he was awarded the Geological Society's first Wollaston Medal in recognition of his work, and honoured by the Society's President, Adam Sedgwick, as the father of English geology. To mark the two hundredth anniversary of its publication, I invited a number of poets...
