Excerpt: . . . begins; there is a constant desire to pass water and a strained, protruding feeling at the neck of the bladder; then follows a fearful itching, scalding, aching sensation, which well-nigh drives me frantic. After a time of suffering which is exhausting, the distress subsides. I eat heartily but so bruised and beaten do I feel that I can only take the edge of a chair for rest. I have such a time, also, every night, being obliged to get up every few minutes to pass a few drops of water, and the Dr. H. A. Foster in the Phys. and Surg. Inv. (Therapeutic Gazette, 1SS0, p. 223). passage is often agonizing. There seems to be about the same quantity, though at times it is strong and high-colored. We have here pure irritability, and half-drachm doses of fluid extract of Eucalyptus quickly controlled the trouble, as she states in a letter dated december 23d: I have found out the benefits of Eucalyptus in my case. Its relief came most opportunely, for I dont know how I could much longer have endured the terrible strain of the bladder difficulty, and I am so happy to find a balm for that, etc. , etc. I have obtained good results, also, in several cases of incontinence of urine, and in some cases of gonorrhoea I consider it superior to copabia and the oil of sandalwood. It seems to relieve the pain and scalding more promptly, and reduce the...
