Not illustrated. 1908 Excerpt: .and forwarded it to Murray with the lordly intimation that he could print it or not as he pleased, but that if it appeared by itself it must be anonymously. Printed it was and issued on April 16, 1814, only five days after the abdication had been signed. Byron had no objection to its being said to be mine, and there was no mystery about it. The ode was accepted by the critics as his, and treated accordingly. The thirteenth edition soon saw the light. So recently as 1903 a translation into Hindustani was printed at Lahore. Two anonymous poems by two eminent authors were published together on August 6, 1814. One was Lara, by Byron, the other Jacqueline, by Rogers. This union of fire and water only existed for a short time. A divorce then ensued. But the first separate impression of Jacqueline was also anonymous. The mock heroic poem which was entitled Prospectus and Specimen of an intended National Work by William and Robert Whistlecraft of Stowmarket in Suffolk,¹ Harness and Collarmakers, intended to comprise the most interesting particulars relating to King Arthur and his Round Table and written in an excellent manner, reviving in English poetry the octave stanzas of Pulci and others, was by John Hookham Frere. Byron avowed that it had inspired his own humorous Beppo, a Venetian Story. This was published anonymously on May 4, 1818, and the seventh edition appeared before the year was out. 1 A lady of...
