The Committee encouraged the Administration to engage in a constructive dialog with Congress to close the vast gulf in our rel-at-ive perspectives on the Corps Civil Works program and to set some clear priorities for the Corps. The Committee also encouraged the Administration to begin preparation of a long-term roadmap for the Civil Works program, so that Congress and the Administration can both see the current and future requirements of the Corps Civil Works program. The Administrations Fiscal Year 2005 budget request rejects both Committee requests. Therefore, in the absence of Administra-tion leadership on these issues, the Committee takes responsibility for providing constructive, albeit unilateral, responses to both chal-lenges. As outlined below, the Committee offers specific guidance on project priorities and on a long-range roadmap for the Corps Civil Works program. Project Priorities. - One of the perceived problems with the Civil Works program is that it represents a mere agglomeration of projects of interest to Congress and the Administration, with no rhyme nor reason underlying the selection of which projects receive funding. There is some truth...
